Abstract

ETHNICITY, CORRECTIONS AND SUPERVISION

CURRICULUM PROJECT

Joan M. Barfield

Under the Supervision of Dr. Patricia Bromley

The educational project titled, ETHNICITY, CORRECTIONS AND SUPERVISION examines the nature of prejudice and discrimination, and their relationship within the Criminal Justice System. Students studying this curriculum will analyze personal behaviors, attitudes, values, and the impact of interactions with diverse populations. Employment/industry trends and a service-learning component are integrated into the curriculum to increase cultural awareness. Practical application situations encouraging effective communication, as well as a variety of assessment methods link theory and practice to encourage and support culturally competent workers in the Criminal Justice field.

Chapter One: Introduction

In 2007, the American Association for Colleges and Universities (AAC&U) identified the ability to communicate and interact effectively in diverse groups and settings as a fundamental priority for higher education in the twenty-first century (Lee, Williams, & Kilaberia, 2012, p. 200). Relatedly, the Wisconsin Technical College System (WTCS) website states:

Diversity encompasses an array of experience, including, but not limited to, age, race, ethnicity, gender, religion, disabilities, socioeconomic status, sexual orientation,

An appreciative awareness of diversity provides the foundation for the understanding that individuals are shaped by this array of experience. Diversity services focus on addressing the specific needs of students that identify as members of historically under-represented and/or under-served populations defined by federal, state, and local law.

Where the definition of diversity is defined in terms of racial and ethnic identity, a broader definition is relevant and more appropriate to the college community. According to Clayton-Pedersen et al, as cited in Lee, Williams, and Kilaberia (2012), “diversity means the active, intentional, and ongoing engagement with differences in a purposeful manner to increase one’s diversity related competencies and refers to the presence of difference and to the act and process of engaging those differences in an intentional manner” (p. 201).

Likewise, Hyman and Jacobs (2009) assert that diversity expands worldliness, enhances social development, and prepares students for future career success to work in a global society. The study of diversity, including race, ethnicity, gender, religion, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, and age, is important for college students to explore. Moreover, the ability to communicate with a diverse population can increase awareness and strengthen relationships, increase a student’s knowledge base, promote creative thinking, enhance self-awareness and enrich multiple perspectives. Students who study diversity and explore values, beliefs, and behaviors and the elements of multi-cultural and diverse environments will be prepared to apply this knowledge and communication skills to the criminal justice workplace.

Purpose of the Study

The curriculum revision will offer a career specific perspective with relevance to diversity and issues affecting the criminal justice system. Additionally, reference to journals and websites will enhance the learning plans and foster critical thinking skills. A service–learning component is integrated into a performance assessment task, which allows for experiential learning and practical applications. Finally, the curriculum is presented electronically.

Significance of the Study

Updated curriculum will inform students of relevant issues and topics related to diversity and the criminal justice profession. Professionals from the Criminal Justice/Corrections advisory committee offer input regarding current trends in the workplace. The advisory committee and instructors discuss the industry trends that affect the current economy, the workplace/employment and the Associate Degree Program. Students will evaluate and reflect upon their personal values, attitudes and behaviors concerning diversity. Furthermore, increased knowledge and awareness of multicultural/diverse environments will benefit students who desire to work as corrections professionals.

Statement of the Problem

The current curriculum at Moraine Park Technical College does not offer students an examination of industry specific topics or a service-learning component. Furthermore, just as evidence-based studies analyze the risks and needs of offenders; it makes sense that a curriculum project on ethnicity, corrections and supervision would encompass a variety of learning theories, competencies, and learning plans to meet the needs of the students. If students are not able to transfer the learning of knowledge and skills, and do not portray tolerance and acceptance for diverse populations, or if they fail to utilize effective communication skills, it could affect their ability to work in the criminal justice field.

Definition of Terms

Cultural Awareness: a set of congruent behaviors, attitudes, and policies that come together in a system, agency, or among professionals that enable them to work effectively in cross-cultural situations (Lee, Williams, & Kilaberia, 2012).

Delimitations of Research

The references used for this educational project were searched through the Karrmann Library at the University of Wisconsin-Platteville and at the Moraine Park Technical College Library over a period of sixty days. ProQuest Criminal Justice and EBSCO HOST search engines were utilized. The key search topics were “diversity,” and “criminal justice system.”
Chapter Two: Review of Related Literature

The Importance of Diversity

According to Lee et al. (2012), diversity is a complex but an essential component at all levels of a college institution, including the classroom (Lee, Williams & Kilaberia, 2012). Every college student enters the classroom with values, beliefs, and personal experience related to diversity. These values and beliefs are learned and can be deeply rooted. Furthermore, topics related to diversity can be sensitive, controversial, and complicated in nature. Coincidently, if the issues discussed do not align with one’s current belief system, dissonance exists. It is important for students in criminal justice/corrections classes to analyze their current perspectives, opinions and biases and develop skills essential to communication, teamwork, and the ability to overcome personal and social barriers to foster the development of diversity skills. Engaging with an open mind for tolerance and respect supports cultural competence for others.

Diversity-related education is imperative to the criminal justice profession. A lack of attention to cultural issues is reported at every point of contact within the system (Osher & Steadman, 2010). In support of education, Closson (2010) suggests an examination of racism in diversity courses with relevance to literature and diversity movements. In addition, professionals serving on the Moraine Park Technical College (MPTC) Criminal Justice/Corrections advisory committee support the critical examination of diversity-related issues consistent with evidence-based practices. Professionals indicate students must employ the ability to communicate and display respect for a diverse culture for the safety and security of the facility, as well as conduct themselves as culturally competent workers in their environment.

In addition to the knowledge and understanding of diversity-related issues, students who investigate and utilize critical thinking skills gain a deeper perspective “crucial for understanding racial dynamics, particularly the way that current inequalities are connected to earlier, more overt, practices of racial exclusion” (Closson, 2010).

Communication and Working with Diverse Populations

Practitioners and scholars agree on the importance of communication and working with diverse populations. In an article written for corrections professionals, Thelen (2014) advises correctional staff to listen, be positive, mentally prepare and respect when working with offenders, adding, “You have to remember, it is our job to interact with people who don’t want to be interacted with....” (“How to be Successful when Dealing with Inmates,” para. 13).

Furthermore, competent communicators must be mindful, tolerate ambiguity, and manage anxiety (Manglia & Nielsen, 2009). In a generation where technology and devices surpass the skillful art of face-to-face communication, students must recognize the communication barriers among the clientele they may be working with. Limited technology resources, age, and generational influences may affect communication. Communicators are aware of barriers and nonverbal cues that may distract or reduce effective communication. In order for criminal justice personnel to achieve intercultural communication competence, it is important to possess knowledge regarding key influences on communication, including the impact of diversity, the power of nonverbal communication, and the importance of the situational context.

Working with a diverse population requires students to identify personal prejudices and stereotypes and acquire knowledge of other cultures. Diversity expands the capacity for viewing issues or problems from multiple perspectives, angles, and vantage points (Hyman & Jacobs, 2009). Knowledge gained through introspection of self and an examination of other diverse communities of people will assist students with critical thinking skills and promote tolerance and acceptance. According to Caffarella and Daffron (2013), the transfer of learning, used in a behavioral context, encompasses observable changes in knowledge, skills, and attitudes. Therefore, the ability to communicate among diverse populations is crucial to diversity-related curriculum.

Integration of Learning Theories, Strategies, and Assessment Methods

An examination of learning theories, strategies and assessment methods is imperative for curriculum development. In addition, utilizing multicultural teaching approaches including conservative and liberal ideas, and critical examination of the ideas presented, will meet the teacher’s specific objectives (Gorski, 2010). Coincidently, the approaches of teaching the “other,” teaching with cultural sensitivity and tolerance, displaying multicultural competence, and teaching sociopolitical awareness, aligns with many learning theories. A behaviorist, cognitivist, constructivist, humanist, or social learning theory focus on behaviors, experiences, and processes pertaining to the learner can only enhance multiculturalism. The combination of theories and approaches, relevant to the usefulness of a diversity-related curriculum project, focuses on diverse groups and strives towards change (Lara, 2007).

Critical Race Theory (CRT) examines critical perspectives to seek change through acknowledging racism and promoting understanding (Merriam & Bierema, 2013). Students who examine critical perspectives will have an opportunity to utilize professional communication skills, a key component of the Ethnicity, Corrections and Supervision course curriculum, to educate others in the social and experiential context of racism. Oritz and Jani (2010), state that the Critical Race Theory for teaching diversity is where transformations of social relations are conducted through dialogue and social relationships.

Another way educators can promote critical thinking skills and employ practical applications is the engagement in diversity-related issues through tapping multiple intelligences.
Utilizing Howard Gardner’s concept of Multiple Intelligences, specifically interpersonal intelligences, allows students to explore various strategies and methods of learning, to promote their own cultural awareness and aid in using more effective communication. Moreover, Strasser and Seplocha (2005) suggest the intelligences of interpersonal and intrapersonal relationships are critical to understanding prejudice, diversity and multicultural perspectives.

The Interactive Model of Program Planning is another resource that supports the importance and relevance of the “transfer of learning” to a work/employment setting (Caffarella & Daffron, 2013). Learners want to know how the skills and knowledge attained will assist them in their personal and professional lives. Providing relevant student-centered learning activities reinforces the skills needed to be successful in the workforce. Expectedly then, learning activities that promote critical-thinking skills and communication skills will accommodate the diverse needs of the student population (Sims, 2006).

Assessment methods can be formative or summative and can measure performance, knowledge, and skills many different ways. Scenario-based training allows students to actively engage in the/an experience, and relate it to the profession by practicing the skill. Currently, the Department of Justice (DOJ) mandates this training for students in the jail certification program. Additionally, an analysis of case studies, cooperative learning activities such as jigsaw or think-pair-share, internet research, journaling or reflections are ways to assess student learning. Utilizing a variety of strategies and assessments will reduce the potential barriers that may exist for the learning transfer (Closson, 2013).

Curriculum that incorporates real life applications specific to the industry encourages one’s knowledge base and promotes critical thinking skills. Furthermore, cultural awareness benefits students, teachers, the community, and society as a whole.
Chapter Three: Summary and Conclusions

Diversity enriches the educational experience. The concepts and objectives of this curriculum project are designed to support diversity-related education and inspire students to transfer this knowledge to the work place.

Cultural awareness includes an examination of values, beliefs, and attitudes that allows one to work effectively in cross-cultural situations (Lee, Williams & Kilaberia, 2012). Professionals from the field identify the trends correctional professionals encounter and support the need for diversity-related education. Obtaining knowledge and awareness of specific issues relevant to the corrections profession will promote awareness of diversity-related issues and encourage students to become culturally skilled workers through effective communication.

Students who understand other people are able to mediate conflicts more effectively, understand and recognize stereotypes and prejudices, and more readily display empathy toward others. Comparatively, those who understand themselves and can identify strengths and weaknesses will have an understanding of prejudice, diversity, and multicultural perspectives (Strasser & Seplocha, 2005).

Students who study this curriculum will understand the critical importance of multicultural understanding. They will analyze their personal behaviors, attitudes, values, and their impact on interactions with diverse populations. An examination of employment/industry trends and a service-learning component are integrated into the curriculum to increase cultural awareness and offer real-world applications. Ultimately, students will reflect upon their personal experiences and transfer the learning to professional situations.

Multiple learning theories, approaches, activities, and resources support diversity-related concepts in this project. Students examine how they can promote cultural awareness, tolerance, and acceptance of others through an examination of research and the review of correctionsrelated literature, In addition, they will engage in a service-learning component, and relate the information gleaned in service learning to the criminal justice system.

According to Merriam & Bierema (2014, p. 39), when the educator’s view of the learning process encompasses “changes in behavior, internal mental process, a personal act of fulfilling potential, interactions with and observations of other in social context, and construction of meaning from experience,” significant changes in the learner’s behavior, thoughts, attitudes, and understanding occur.

The overall intent of this curriculum revision project is to engage critical thinking skills, support interpersonal relations as a skill set required to understanding prejudice, diversity and multicultural perspectives in the criminal justice field. Ultimately, this knowledge and reflection of diverse issues will assist students who intend to pursue a career in the Criminal Justice/Corrections profession to live and work in a multicultural/diverse environment.

Thus, the following proposal for curriculum revision will be submitted to James Brace, Associate Dean of Human Services at Moraine Park Technical College, for consideration as a formal curriculum development project for incorporation into the Criminal Justice/Corrections Program during the 2015-2016 academic years.

Core Abilities

Core Ability Statement

Your instructors have worked with representatives from business and industry to identify seven skills that are essential to your success in obtaining and keeping a job. You will work toward attaining and improving these skills in all your courses. By helping you develop the core abilities and holding you responsible for their application, your teachers will help you increase the likelihood of career success.

Communicate Clearly
1. You plan and organize communications according to the purpose and audience.
2. You summarize in a brief and concise manner.
3. You provide support materials (e.g., facts, reasons, examples, details, statistics, anecdotes and quotes) to aid in understanding your ideas and information.
4. You participate in discussions, group work modeling active listening, and feedback skills.
5. You demonstrate mastery of grammar, spelling, punctuation, capitalization, word usage and sentence structure.
6. You model professionalism and etiquette in all communications (e.g., letters, e-mail, voice mail and texting).

Act Responsibly
1. You follow directions.
2. You follow safety procedures.
4. You meet deadlines.
5. You present a professional image in your work and your appearance.
6. You are accountable for your actions.

Work Productively
1. You stay on task.
2. You work independently, as needed, to complete work.
3. You ask for assistance when needed.
4. You set and attain goals.
5. You manage time effectively.
6. You prioritize work to meet deadlines.
7. You strive for continuous improvement in your work.
8. You use resources efficiently.

Think Critically and Creatively
1. You use active problem-solving techniques (Plan, Do, Check, Act).
2. You are creative in exploring possible solutions.
3. You consider the human, interpersonal and factual dimensions of a problem.
4. You distinguish between fact and opinion.
5. You apply global perspective to decisions and actions.
Adapt to Change
1. You modify thoughts and actions as situations change.
2. You anticipate changes coming to, or affecting, the situation.
3. You approach change calmly and rationally.
4. You use positive behaviors to foster continual growth.

Demonstrate Integrity
1. You demonstrate pride in your work by striving for the highest possible quality.
2. You accept and provide feedback to further individual and group growth.
3. You credit others for their contributions and share credit for tasks requiring a team effort.
4. You demonstrate trustworthiness by being honest, dependable, confidential and reliable.

Work Cooperatively
1. You complete assigned tasks for teamwork.
2. You demonstrate collaborative strategies.
3. You exchange information, ideas, opinions and solutions in a team/group setting.
4. You respect others.
5. You encourage and assist team members.
Performance-Based Instruction

You, as a learner, are the most important part of instruction. In performance-based instruction, we carefully identify what you need to be able to do because of an instructional experience. Next, we determine how you can show that you have learned these skills. Finally, we plan learning activities that will help you develop the skills.

Performance-based instruction has many advantages for you:

1) What you will learn is based on the skills you will need, rather than on outlines of information.

2) You can plan how to invest your time and energy. To help you do that, we tell you right up front, WHAT you will learn, WHEN you will show you have learned, and HOW you may go about learning.

3) You know the standards for evaluation before the performance test. You earn a grade according to how well you perform the skills rather than according to how well others in the class perform. You are not graded on a curve.

4) You are actively involved in the learning. We design learning activities and assignments that teach you to solve problems and to learn on your own.

5) When you complete a learning experience, you have documentation showing the skills you have learned. You can use this information when you seek employment, admission to further education, advanced standing, or transfer of credit.

You may find it helpful to learn the basic terminology we use to describe WHAT, WHEN, and HOW you will learn.

WHAT

Core Ability--A broad capability that you will develop throughout a course or program rather than in one specific lesson. Core abilities include skills that everyone needs to succeed, such as problem solving, communication, employability, and lifelong learning.

Competency--A major skill, knowledge, or attitude that you will learn because of a given learning experience. A competency is specific to a discipline (such as history, math, language) or to an occupational area (such as nursing, accounting, engineering).

Learning Objective--A supporting skill, knowledge, or attitude that you will learn as a step toward mastery of a specific competency. Each competency has two or more learning objectives.

WHEN

Performance Standards--Observable and measurable specifications by which your performance will be evaluated, and a description of the situation under which your performance will be assessed.

Performance Assessment Activity--A statement that tells you what you must do to show mastery of one or more competencies (instructions for completing assignments, performance assessment tasks, or tests).

HOW

Learning Activity--A statement that describes what you can do to help you master specific learning objectives and competencies. (You may think of them as assignments.)
Competencies

1. Examine the nature of prejudice and discrimination.
2. Investigate origins of ethnic groups.
3. Analyze personal behaviors, attitudes, values, and the impact of interactions with different cultures.
4. Communicate contributions of ethnic groups to contemporary American culture.
5. Appraise how diverse perspectives influence or affect the criminal justice profession.
6. Increase cultural awareness.
7. Utilize interpersonal communication skills while working with diverse populations.
8. Develop a philosophy reflecting the positive effects of cultural competence.

Course Grading Information

Grading Rationale

In order to pass the course, you must complete ALL of the assessment tasks. Assessment tasks will be graded according to the specific competency criteria for each competency. You will fail this course if all of the assessments are not successfully completed.

You will complete the following Performance Assessment Tasks for Ethnicity, Corrections and Supervision:

Moraine Park Technical College Guidelines

MPTC ADA Statement

If you have a disability that may have some impact on your work in this class and for which you may require accommodations, please see the Learning Specialist at your respective campus so that such accommodations may be arranged. You will need to provide documentation of your disability to the Disability Resource Center.

For more information on disability services offered and appropriate contact information at Moraine Park, please go to the Moraine Park website: http://www.morainepark.edu/services/student-resources/disability-services/services/

MPTC Course Timeline Changes

As your instructor, I retain the right to make changes based on the timeline of the class, feedback from students and/or logistical issues and will inform you as soon as a change is made.

MPTC Instructor Responsibilities

As your instructor, I commit to communicating openly and frequently with you about this class. I will maintain a professional, safe learning environment adhering to the policies of the college. You can expect a reply to communication, be it via e-mail, through online discussions, voicemail or in person, typically within 1-2 days, excluding weekends and holidays.

MPTC Peer Tutoring

Moraine Park offers tutorial services to students who are experiencing difficulties in their courses. This service is provided at no charge through a federally funded project to students who are currently enrolled in vocational and/or technical courses. The program recruits students who excel in their subjects and hires them to work as peer tutors. Every effort is made to find a match, however a match is not guaranteed. Tutoring may be individual or group sessions.

For more information on accessing tutoring services at Moraine Park, please go to the Moraine Park website: http://www.morainepark.edu/services/student-resources/tutoring/
MPTC Student E-Mail

All students are issued a student e-mail account. This e-mail account is your official means of communication with the College. All communications from the College will be sent to your Moraine Park issued student e-mail account; including eCollege communications, notifications for availability of grades, add/drop registration information, faculty communications and more.

You are responsible for monitoring your student e-mail account. For more information on setting up and accessing your Moraine Park student e-mail account, please go to the Moraine Park website: http://www.morainepark.edu/admission-and-registration/enroll-in-a-program/open-account/

MPTC Student Outside Effort

You will need to devote additional time to course work outside of scheduled class sessions in order to successfully complete MPTC courses. The amount of outside effort required varies, dependent on the course instructional level and delivery modality. Your instructor can best advise you what to expect for a given course.

MPTC Student Responsibilities

As a student of MPTC, I expect you to adhere to the policies of the college, as outlined by the Student Handbook (please see below). A link to the Student Handbook can be found on myMPTC, Student tab, in the Student Resources channel or at http://www.morainepark.edu/services/student-resources/

You are responsible for the duties set forth in this class and to communicate any questions, comments or concerns you have to me. Acceptable means of communication include Moraine Park student e-mail, voicemail or through online discussion forums. Use of correct grammar and punctuation is required in all written communications.

Plagiarism, cheating and collusion are prohibited at MPTC. Students who fail to observe these standards are subject to disciplinary action. Please refer to the MPTC Student Handbook for further definitions and consequences of these behaviors.
MPTC Use of Electronic Devices

Refer to the Use of Computers section in the Student Handbook for user responsibilities and inappropriate usage of computing resources. Instructors may have additional criteria related to cell phone usage during classroom and/or laboratory sessions. Students can be held accountable for use of electronic devices through the Core Abilities or Critical Core Manufacturing Skills assessments.

MPTC uses myPrint as its print management system. Each student is credited with a $40 lifetime print allowance. Students are welcome to add additional money to their accounts with a credit card either online using PayPal at http://myprinting.morainepark.edu or using the Cash Processing stations at each campus library. More information about myPrint can be found on myMPTC, Student tab, in the Student Resources channel.
Learning Plans

Module 1 Brown Eye/Blue Eye

Target Competencies

1. Examine the nature of prejudice and discrimination.

   Criteria
   You reflect on the importance of the Brown Eye/Blue Eye role-play for Corrections Professionals.
   You summarize individual learning and insights compared to initial expectations. Identify how personal assumptions have been affected and/or provide concrete examples.
   You include a quote or “mantra” as part of your reflection that supports your attitude or opinion of cultural awareness.
   You reflect on at least three steps you can take to promote cultural awareness, tolerance and acceptance of others.

Learning Objectives
Illustrate some of the overt and subtle ways that prejudice undermines people of color.
Characterize some of the consequences of prejudice.
Explore the different groups that currently and historically have experienced prejudice.
Discuss diversity-related topics that previously may have been "undiscussable."
Describe corrections core skills.
Examine reasons for why racism persists in society.
Cite the characteristics a prejudiced person usually displays.
Illustrate the basis for the kind of hostile attitudes that prejudiced persons display.
Articulate common characteristics associated with prejudice.
Research theories explaining the existence and persistence of prejudice in American society.
Describe the basic characteristics of stereotypes.
Investigate the contribution of stereotyping on prejudice.
Analyze the types of discrimination that certain groups face.
Portray the links between prejudice and discrimination.
Appraise how group prejudice leads to the patterns of discrimination faced by many groups.
Explain the Critical Race Theory Model.

Learning Activities

1. ROLE-PLAY discrimination.
2. LISTEN to a presentation by the instructor on the impact of discrimination.
3. ASK/ANSWER questions about the experience of being discriminated against.
4 PARTICIPATE in a class discussion.
5 READ the poem, "HOW COME?"
6 VIEW the documentary, “A Class Divided” http://www.pbs.org/wgbh/pages/frontline/shows/divided/etc/view.html
7 CONTRIBUTE in a class discussion analyzing “is prejudice learned through living in and observing a society where prejudice exists?
8 COMPLETE a KWL chart identifying emotions of the role-play
9 ANALYZE a scholarly article about the Critical Race Theory.
10 UTILIZE the Internet to search for a you tube video regarding discrimination or prejudice.
11 SHARE this with the class and discuss the impact of words.
12 EXPLORE the Diversity Resource Center.
13 EXAMINE your prejudices, biases, and stereotypes.

Directions:

Create a “cultural resume” that describes a different culture’s communication. As you familiarize yourself with the specific culture, the intent is to develop increased sensitivity toward people of the culture and their communication style. It is recommended, though not required, to interview a member of your selected culture or observe a cultural practice for a deeper, more personal understanding of the culture. You will work in a group and present this information to the entire class. The presentation should be approximately 10-15 minutes and should include music and/or visual aids.

Suggestions:

- Customs and Courtesies- Greetings, Visiting, Eating, Gestures, Personal Appearance.
- Lifestyle- Family, Dating, Courtship, Marriage, Social and Economic Levels, Recreation and Work, Diet and Food Customs, Music.
Useful Words or Phrases.

You do not have to include all of the suggestions. Choose the items that are unique to the culture and will assist with evidence of learning. Most importantly, how is this information relevant to future corrections professionals and intrapersonal communications?

Comments:
A Culturally Skilled Worker is one who has moved from being culturally unaware to being aware and sensitive to his/her own cultural heritage and to valuing and respecting differences.

A Culturally Skilled Worker is aware of his/her own values and biases; and how they may affect minority clients.

A Culturally Skilled Worker is comfortable with differences that exist between him/herself and clients in terms of race and beliefs.

A Culturally Skilled Worker is sensitive to circumstances (personal biases, stage of ethnic identity, sociopolitical influences, etc.) that may dictate referral of the minority client to a member of his/her own race/culture or to another worker, in general.

A Culturally Skilled Worker acknowledges and is aware of his/her own racist attitudes, beliefs and feelings.

A Culturally Skilled Worker must possess specific knowledge and information about the particular group s/he is working with.

A Culturally Skilled Worker will have a good understanding of the sociopolitical system’s operation in the US with respect to treatment of minorities.

A Culturally Skilled Worker must have a clear and explicitly knowledge and understanding of the generic characteristics of the helping relationship.

A Culturally Skilled Worker is aware of institutional barriers within the system that prevent minorities from utilizing the services “available” and “offered”.

A Culturally Skilled Worker must be able to generate a wide variety of verbal and nonverbal responses.

A Culturally Skilled Worker must be able to send and receive both verbal and nonverbal messages accurately and appropriately.

A Culturally Skilled Worker is able to exercise institutional intervention skills on behalf of his/her client when appropriate.
XIII. A Culturally Skilled Worker is aware of his/her helping style, recognizes the limitations s/he possesses and can anticipate the impact upon the culturally different client.

CORRECTIONS SCIENCE “CORE SKILLS”

DEFINITION:

“Core Skills” are those skills identified by current practitioners, Corrections Science program (CSP) faculty, and past CSP graduates that seem both necessary and useful in the various functions, duties, and tasks performed in entry-level corrections positions.

PURPOSE:

It is hoped that all corrections professionals will exercise professional humility, integrity, and a high degree of commitment to specific skills that allow one to enjoy and be effective in the PROCESS involved in corrections positions.

Process equals the use of “Core Skills” to develop, enhance, or maintain our focus on the why, the how, and the what we do to provide safety/security and/or to reintegrate offenders/clients/inmates. It is a belief that many whom we supervise may not show immediate or tangible change; however, the process and skills used by us are still worthy and enjoyable in and of themselves. It is also the belief that a corrections worker may not be rewarded extrinsically for correct behaviors but the process, once again, seems worthy. To live day-by-day with motivation from the intrinsic reward of helping to help others and ourselves to help them/ourselves.

PRACTICAL APPLICATION:

It is hoped that many of the skills developed and enhanced will increase the quality of one’s personal, interpersonal, and professional lives. Students who are able to identify, recognize, and develop competence in the “Core Skills” will greatly enhance their ability to both interview for, and secure positions in, corrections upon graduation from the CSP. Students are strongly encouraged to keep this list, make appropriate notations, and practice the “Core Skills” therein. Although much skill development will be accomplished through the curricula and classroom, it is very important that students use introspection and self-motivation outside of the classroom to develop and apply the “Core Skills.” Measurement of skill development will be done through tests, quizzes, role plays, scenario development, personal growth projects, and from instructor, peer, and self-evaluation instruments and processes.

RELATEDNESS TO MORAINE PARK TECHNICAL COLLEGE:

“Core Skills” are Corrections specific, yet similar to Competencies, Instructional Objectives, Learning Activities, and Evaluation Processes recognized in most competency-based instructional material throughout Moraine Park.
