Table of contents pages from current issues of major feminist journals are reproduced in each issue of Feminist Periodicals, preceded by a comprehensive annotated listing of all journals we have selected. As publication schedules vary enormously, not every periodical will have table of contents pages reproduced in each issue of FP. The annotated listing provides the following information on each journal:

1. Year of first publication.
2. Frequency of publication.
3. Subscription prices (print only; for online prices, consult publisher).
4. Subscription address.
6. Editorial address (if different from subscription address).
8. OCLC, Inc. Control Number.
9. Selected publications in which the journal is indexed.
10. Selected fulltext products in which publication appears or vendor intermediaries who make the full text available.
11. Subject focus/statement of purpose of the journal.

Please note that in the actual text, only the numbers 1 to 11 are used to identify the different categories of information.

Our goal in FP is to represent English-language periodicals from around the world that focus on women’s studies or women’s issues. Generally, we do not include mainstream newsstand magazines. We are also unable to include periodicals that lack a complete table of contents. We encourage feminist serials to build a full table of contents into their regular format to facilitate possible inclusion in FP and indexing elsewhere.

Interested readers will find more complete information on feminist periodicals in DWM: A Directory of Women’s Media, published by the National Council for Research on Women (530 Broadway at Spring Street, New York, NY 10012); and in Women’s Periodicals and Newspapers: A Union List of the Holdings of Madison Area Libraries, edited by James P. Danky and compiled by Maureen E. Hady, Barry Christopher, and Neill E. Strache (Boston: G.K. Hall, 1982).
Suggestions for improvements of Feminist Periodicals are gratefully received. We would particularly appreciate assistance from readers in the UW System with our efforts to keep the holding information complete and up to date. Please let us know about new subscriptions, subscriptions we have overlooked, cancellations, or other pertinent information. Feminist Periodicals is also available on microfilm at the library of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin.

University of Wisconsin System users: To locate these periodicals within the UW System, do a UW System/Universal Borrowing search from your campus catalog (labeled variously “Other Libraries,” “More Libraries,” “Other Catalogs,” “Other UW Catalogs,” etc.) If information on actual holdings (volumes and issues) is not in the records retrieved, contact the Reference Department for each library of interest:

11. "Berkeley Journal of Gender, Law & Justice, a continuation of the Berkeley Women’s Law Journal, is guided by an editorial policy which distinguishes us from other law reviews and feminist journals. Our mandate is to publish research, analysis, narrative, theory, and commentary that address the lives and struggles of underrepresented women. We believe that excellence in feminist legal scholarship requires critical examination of the intersection of gender with one or more other axes of subordination, including, but not limited to, race, class, sexual orientation, and disability. Therefore discussions that treat women as a monolithic group do not fall within our mandate. Because conditions of inequality are continually changing, our mandate is continually evolving."

11. “Feminist Media Studies provides a transdisciplinary, transnational forum for readers pursuing feminist approaches to the field of media and communication studies, with attention to the historical, philosophical, cultural, social, political, and economic dimensions and analysis of sites including print and electronic media, film and the arts, and new media technologies. The journal invites contributions from feminist researchers working across a range of disciplines and conceptual perspectives. Feminist Media Studies offers a unique intellectual space bringing together scholars, professionals and activists from around the world to engage with feminist issues and debates in media and communication. Its editorial board and contributors reflect a commitment to the facilitation of international dialogue among researchers, through attention to local, national and global contexts for critical and empirical feminist media inquiry.”

11. “Feminist Studies was founded to encourage analytic responses to feminist issues and to open new areas of research, criticism and speculation. The editors are committed to providing a forum for feminist analysis, debate, and exchange. The feminist movement has demonstrated that the study of women is more than a compensatory project. Instead, feminism has the potential fundamentally to reshape the way we view the world. We wish not just to interpret women’s experiences but to change women’s condition. For us, feminist thought represents a transformation of consciousness, social forms, and modes of action.”

10. "Femspec, a peer-reviewed journal, is interested in developing a community of like-minded people engaged in speculating, theorizing, creating and questioning gender across the boundaries, including issues of sexual orientation. We emphasize interdisciplinary approaches, and encourage work on teaching as well as literary and cultural criticism and creative material. We hope an approach to pedagogy will bring in work from a wider area of disciplines. We are interested in a variety of feminisms and aim to be inclusive of ethnic and cultural diversity in an internationalist perspective. We are also committed to publishing feminist experimental prose and poetic works, and to experimenting across media. Our impetus came from the collectively-perceived lack of attention to non-linear writing, sf, fantasy, magical realism and supernatural works in feminist journals and audiences; the lack of consistently evolving developed levels of feminism in sf criticism; and the inadequacy of magical realism publishing outlets in the U.S."

7. “Persimmon Tree showcases an impressive variety of literature and art by women over 60, many still working well into their 80s and 90s. Many of the writers and artists are well-known: Marilyn French, Ruth Stone, Grace Paley, E. M. Broner, Paula Gunn Allen, Jane Lazarre, Faith Ringgold, and Nicole Hollander. Others are lesser known, while some are newly developing their craft in their later years. All of them are at the height of their creative powers, and all of them express the shared, though diverse experiences of aging women, from late middle age to late old age. Persimmon Tree is intended to fill a niche that has been neglected by contemporary publishing, whether in print or online. There is a growing body of work by male writers and artists who are entering or well into old age. But the comparable body of work by aging women in much smaller and mostly limited to a few already well-known writers and artists. Women are creating, but they are not getting the exposure they deserve.”

cultural feminist analysis, original research, debate and exchange. We seek not only to describe women's experiences but to interpret them within their socio-political context in order to understand how women's condition has been and can be changed. "PHOTO is particularly committed to publishing work informed by a theoretical perspective which will enrich critical thinking in various areas. Work that examines the intersection of race, class and gender or focuses on racial, sexual or ethnic minorities is especially welcome."

11. The aim of Reproductive Health Matters is “to promote laws, policies, research and services that meet women’s reproductive health needs and support women’s right to decide whether, when and how to have children... [its] women-centered perspective...allows us to identify and understand women’s reproductive health needs, and therefore evaluate and improve on existing policy and practice to women's benefit.... To this end, the journal explores what is meant by women’s needs and how these can best be met. It addresses fundamental values, concerns and dilemmas, acknowledging the multi-faceted nature of problems and solutions. Finally, it reflects on commonalities and differences in goals and points of view among those involved in the field – in order to foster increased communication and cooperation, new thinking and action, and new forms of consensus.”

10. "Studies in Gender and Sexuality is a response to the excitement attendant to recent research and writing by scholars and clinicians. It provides a forum for examining gender and sexuality that is both multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary. As clinicians and scholars who have written and practiced at the intersection of feminist theory and clinical psychoanalysis, the editors are especially interested in those areas of controversy that invite the divergent perspectives and insights of different disciplines. Early issues of SGs focus on transgender identities and intersexuality; contemporary readings of the category of perversion; puberty and adolescence revised and revisited; and the intersections among class, race, and gender in theory, culture, and the clinical situation. The primary goal of SGs is to promote dialogue on these and other timely topics among clinicians, researchers, and theorists. Consonant with this goal, the journal also publishes related work from the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences, where questions involving gender and sexuality are currently in lively debate."

7. "Trivia: Voices of Feminism is a public forum for the creative and the critical thinking of that great diversity of women who insist on our primacy, and who in league with and in the name of all the other endangered species on the this planet, refuse to accept the life-destroying status quo. We publish feminist writing in the form of literary essays, experimental prose, poetry, translations, and reviews. We encourage women writers to take risks with language and forms so as to give their ideas the most original and vital expression possible. Our larger purpose is to foster a body of rigorous, creative and independent feminist thought."

A Call to Action: Five Policy Proposals on Behalf of All Families—President’s Address
Leslie A. Koopke

This “Call to Action: Five Policy Proposals on Behalf of All Families” was the presidential address presented at Groves Conference on Marriage and Family on June 3, 2007. The theme of the Groves Conference was “Standing Up and Speaking Out for All Families,” and the goal of the address was to call attention to issues affecting all families and advocate for policies supportive of family well-being. The issues included: supporting gay, post-modern families; establishment of a living wage/family economy for working families; development of family-friendly policies reflecting the reality and structure of diverse families; learning about and from European countries’ family-friendly policies; and recognition of the unique needs of immigrant families, particularly children of immigrant parents.

KEYWORDS: Family policy, social justice, work and family, gay families, post-modern families, diversity

The Heart of Sexual Trauma: Patriarchy as a Centrally Organizing Principle for Couple Therapy
Timothy R. Bainum
Elizabeth B. Fiedlhausen

Sexual trauma has a devastating impact that impacts survivors and their intimate relationships. Current couple therapy models address the effects of sexual trauma on individuals and relationships. Most of these models acknowledge the importance of addressing gender inequalities. So far, no model of couple therapy makes patriarchy centrally to the conceptualization of sexual trauma and treatment. This paper asserts that sexual trauma is one of the most horrific manifestations of patriarchy and therefore it must be effectively treated when an understanding of patriarchy is made central to conceptualization and treatment. We propose that existing couple therapy models have difficulty addressing the needs of couples, and a new approach to understanding male involvement is necessary for both partners and creates space for more preferred ways of being intimate.

KEYWORDS: Sexual trauma, patriarchy, couple therapy

Using an IFS Informed Intervention to Treat African American Families Surviving Sexual Abuse:
One Family’s Story
Erica J. Wilkins

The author provides a case study of Internal Family Systems (IFS) model when providing therapy for an African American single mother who is working to heal with a female child who has been sexually abused. The author presents a four-part challenge to the literature: power, privilege, oppression of African American women. This study provides an example of the use of IFS to challenge issues related to oppression.

KEYWORDS: Internal Family Systems, African American, sexual abuse, feminist family therapy, family therapy

Understanding Poverty from the Perspective of Social Justice Activism:
Reflections on “‘Think Globally–Act Locally’–
A Conversation with Leslie Rebecca Bloom”
Jan-Jo Cheng

In the field of marriage and family therapy, efforts have been made to recognize social justice associated with race, gender, and sexuality over the past decade. However, scant attention is given to the social justice issue in welfare policy that significantly affects daily activities of low-income families. Without awareness of the interactivity with poverty and welfare, marriage and family therapists working with low-income families may reinforce the unjust status quo. This paper builds on the interview with Leslie Rebecca Bloom to address the importance of understanding the impact of poverty on families, and further to provide implications for therapists to promote social justice working with the impoverished or working poor.

KEYWORDS: Poverty, social justice, welfare reform, oppression, intersectionality

Republican Motherhood Redux?: Women as Contingent Citizens in 21st Century America
Melody Rose

This article examines the re-emergence of republican motherhood, once used to define the unique and conditioned relationship between woman and the state in the nineteenth century. By examining recent developments in federal and state abortion policy, I explore the current trend toward "defending" women's social and political citizenship rights in the states, where they will now engage in the volatile and often contentious area of women's reproductive autonomy. Alternatives, these state policy developments demonstrate the simultaneous reaffirmation of civil rights and a language of familial citizenship or paternal autonomy. While women's citizenship becomes contingent upon the suppressions of local power structures, the relationship emerges as an ambivalent, national concept.

KEYWORDS: Abortion, republican motherhood, devolution, patriarchal familia citizenship, fed rights

Masculinity as Political Strategy: George W. Bush, the "War on Terrorism," and an Echoing Press
Kevin Coe

Sheryl Cunningham
Nancy Van Leuven

Scholars have demonstrated the centrality of masculinity as an ideology in the American presidency, but have devoted insufficient attention to the manner in which political leaders can emphasize masculinity in an effort to gain strategic advantage, and how media organizations can be encouraged to adopt such themes in news coverage. This is the aim of this research. We analyze (1) President George W. Bush's public communications prior to and immediately following the attacks of September 11, 2001, and (2) NBC network television news coverage and New York Times and Washington Post articles during the limited time to describe the nature of gender roles in a political strategy. Findings indicate that in the aftermath of September 11 Bush used a highly masculinist ideology through his treatment of the press and emphasis upon national versus state power and strength and dominance and that this approach facilitated wider invocation of his masculine discourse in the press.

Male and Female Sources in Newspaper Coverage of Male and Female Candidates in US Senate Races in 2004
Eric Freedman
Frederick Fico
Brad Love

This study compares how the largest daily newspapers in states with female US Senate candidates in 2004 used non-partisan male and female expert sources and non-expert sources in covering campaigns. Using content analysis, it found that male, non-partisan sources appeared more frequently and prominently than did female sources. This difference was more than four times greater for expert sources who provided "trust me, I'm a senator" commentary than was true for non-expert sources. It also found that reporters of both genders cited female sources equally rarely. There was a marginally nonsignificant gender difference in story sourcing and newspaper sources. The relative weight of female sources may be a significant influence on gender diversity in the political arena. Gender diversity in the political arena may be a significant influence on gender diversity in the political arena.

The Paradox of Protestantism and Women in Elected Office in the United States
Jennifer Merolla
Jean Bethke Elshtead
Mirya Rose Holman

In recent decades, scholars have found that wealthy countries and those with a Protestant tradition are more likely to have higher levels of women in elected office. It's not high enough to be high given the globally highly variable and often contingent access to women's leading status. Alternately, these state policy developments demonstrate the simultaneous reaffirmation of civil rights and a language of familial citizenship or paternal autonomy. While women's citizenship becomes contingent upon the suppressions of local power structures, the relationship emerges as an ambivalent, national concept.

African American Women and Power Politics in New York City, 1944-1972
Julie Gallagher

Between 1944 and 1972, African American women from New York City ran for all levels of elected office, from City Council to the United States Senate. In this article, I argue that World War II created unprecedented opportunities for women in city politics. A study of papers or New York City offices and civil rights organizations reveals how liberal women defined their role as a response to the challenges of discriminatory practices in the city. The women's movement, in the context of the city's rough electorate, succeeded in overcoming the Democratic Party machine, thus raising the issue of race and gender as a means of promoting for women and African Americans.

KEYWORDS: African American women, female candidates, New York City politics, elections, Democratic Party, party politics

NORWAY LEADS THE WAY
The Norwegian Government is preparing the world’s first parliamentary proposition on men and gender equality. The aim is to include all areas where the male role is of significance to gender equality. PAGE 4

“PROSTITUTION - A POINT OF DISAGREEMENT IN THE NORDIC COUNTRIES”
It is illegal in Sweden to buy sexual services, and the Norwegian Government now proposes to introduce a similar law. However, there is insufficient knowledge about the extent of prostitution and about what legislation and which measures are most effective. NIKK is therefore carrying out a project on prostitution, the aim of which is to provide the Nordic governments with a better basis of information. PAGE 12

YOUNG MUSLIMS CRITICAL OF PATRIARCHAL INTERPRETATIONS OF ISLAM
Young practicing Muslims in Norway do not challenge the “natural” and “God-given” divided gender system, which controls the physical, psychological and emotional differences between men and women and their complementary “natures”. However, like Muslim feminists, many of them are critical of the patriarchal interpretations of Islam and instead highlight the egalitarian teachings of the Koran. PAGE 20

Gender equality - a male issue too?
“How often do you hear men around a table talking about gender equality?” asks masculinity researcher Jørgen Lorentzen, member of the Norwegian Men’s Panel. PAGE 6

Increased parental choice
Next year the Swedish Government will carry out two family policy reforms which some researchers regard as contradictory. PAGE 8

When does legal prostitution become illegal trafficking?
Report from a seminar arranged by NIKK PAGE 14

Listen to women’s own interpretations of their religion
“There is a kind of feminist blindness concerning the significance of religion for women, particularly in its positive and liberating aspects”, says the Finnish researcher Elina Vuola in an interview. PAGE 16

Women’s conversions to Islam
When converts talk about their Muslim engagement, they particularly underline that Islam stands for equality between people in general and between the sexes in particular. At the same time, they assert that the wife must obey her husband. PAGE 24

Male violence in the Bible
The Bible contains countless narratives of child sacrifice, rape or incest, which in turn have inspired reinterpretations from artists, composers and writers. What strategies have the interpreters used and how can the history of these interpretations contribute to the understanding of gendered violence in our time? PAGE 29

Female participants make international military operations more successful from the beginning of 2008, Nordic special forces can be sent to international crisis locations by the EU. Researchers at the Swedish National Defence College work on integrating a gender perspective in the Nordic Battlegroup. PAGE 32

Social Workers' Perspectives on the Victim Impact Statements in Cases of Sexual Assault in Canada

Jutica Di Mont
Karen-Lee Miller
Deborah White

The victim impact statement (VIS) is a written account of the physical, psychological, and economic consequences of a crime as experienced by the victim. This paper describes a qualitative study conducted in Ontario, Canada with 13 hospital-based sexual assault nurse-examiners and their clients. It was found that while SANS often provide valuable information, it is rarely used in the judicial process, possibly due to a lack of understanding of its value or the lack of trained personnel to assist with its completion. The paper includes recommendations for future research.

KEYWORDS: Victim impact statements, sexual assault

The Domestic Violence Experiences of Women in Community Corrections

Rachel Bridger Whaley
Angela M. Moe
J. Mark Eddy
Jean Danforth

A review of studies indicates high rates of domestic violence in the backgrounds of women offenders. This study focused on 14 women incarcerated in a women's correctional facility in a Midwestern state. The women were interviewed about their experiences of domestic violence, and issues related to the experience of incarceration and reintegration. The study provides a detailed description of the experiences of women in community corrections, highlighting the importance of addressing these experiences in order to support their successful reintegration.

KEYWORDS: Women, incarceration, domestic violence

An Intermediate Sanction That Fosters the Mother-Child Bond: A Process Evaluation of Summit House

Pauline K. Brennan

Summit House is a residential alternative to incarceration program in North Carolina that operates in a home-like setting for female offenders and their children. The program is designed to provide a supportive environment that fosters the mother-child bond and helps offenders to change their behavior. This paper presents an evaluation of the program, highlighting its effectiveness in reducing recidivism and improving the lives of mothers and their children.

KEYWORDS: Alternative-to-incarceration programs, female offenders, process evaluation

Sexual Assault Training of Law Enforcement Officers: Results of a Statewide Survey

Linda M. Kinney
Eric J. Banks
Patrick Bradley
Joyce Dautler
Mark D. Weist

The effectiveness of sexual assault training for law enforcement officers is crucial in ensuring that officers are prepared to handle these sensitive cases. This paper presents the results of a statewide survey of law enforcement officers to assess the impact of their training. The survey results highlight the need for ongoing training and support to improve the quality of services provided to sexual assault victims.

KEYWORDS: Sexual assault, law enforcement, training
