Feminist Periodicals

A current listing of contents

Volume 28, Number 1 (Winter 2008)

Periodical literature is the cutting edge of women's scholarship, feminist theory, and much of women's culture. Feminist Periodicals: A Current Listing of Contents is published by the Office of the University of Wisconsin System Women's Studies Librarian on a quarterly basis with the intent of increasing public awareness of feminist periodicals. It is our hope that Feminist Periodicals will serve several purposes: to keep the reader abreast of current topics in feminist literature; to increase readers' familiarity with a wide spectrum of feminist periodicals; and to provide the requisite bibliographic information should a reader wish to subscribe to a journal or to obtain a particular article at her library or through interlibrary loan. (Users will need to be aware of the limitations of the new copyright law with regard to photocopying of copyrighted materials.)

Table of contents pages from current issues of major feminist journals are reproduced in each issue of Feminist Periodicals, preceded by a comprehensive annotated listing of all journals we have selected. As publication schedules vary enormously, not every periodical will have table of contents pages reproduced in each issue of FP. The annotated listing provides the following information on each journal:

1. Year of first publication.
2. Frequency of publication.
3. Subscription prices (print only; for online prices, consult publisher).
4. Subscription address.
5. Current editor.
6. Editorial address (if different from subscription address).
7. International Standard Serials Number (ISSN).
8. OCLC, Inc. Control Number.
9. Selected publications in which the journal is indexed.
10. Selected fulltext products in which publication appears or vendor intermediaries who make the full text available.
11. Subject focus/statement of purpose of the journal.

Please note that in the actual text, only the numbers 1 to 11 are used to identify the different categories of information.

Our goal in FP is to represent English-language periodicals from around the world that focus on women's studies or women's issues. Generally, we do not include mainstream newsstand magazines. We are also unable to include periodicals that lack a complete table of contents. We encourage feminist serials to build a full table of contents into their regular format to facilitate possible inclusion in FP and indexing elsewhere.

Interested readers will find more complete information on feminist periodicals in DWM: A Directory of Women's Media, published by the National Council for Research on Women (530 Broadway at Spring Street, New York, NY 10012); and in Women's Periodicals and Newspapers: A Union List of the Holdings of Madison Area Libraries, edited by James P. Danky and compiled by Maureen E. Hady, Barry Christopher, and Neill E. Strache (Boston: G.K. Hall, 1982).

Suggestions for improvements of Feminist Periodicals are gratefully received. We would particularly appreciate assistance from readers in the UW System with our efforts to keep the holding information complete and up to date. Please let us know about new subscriptions, subscriptions we have overlooked, cancellations, or other pertinent information. Feminist Periodicals is also available on microfilm at the library of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin.

University of Wisconsin System users: To locate these periodicals within the UW System, do a UW System/Universal Borrowing search from your campus catalog (labeled variously "Other Libraries," "More Libraries," "Other Catalogs," "Other UW Catalogs," etc.) If information on actual holdings (volumes and issues) is not in the records retrieved, contact the Reference Department for each library of interest:

11. "Berkeley Journal of Gender, Law & Justice, a continuation of the Berkeley Women's Law Journal, is guided by an editorial policy which distinguishes us from other law reviews and feminist journals. Our mandate is to publish research, analysis, narrative, theory, and commentary that address the lives and struggles of underrepresented women. We believe that excellence in feminist legal scholarship requires critical examination of the intersection of gender with one or more other axes of subordination, including, but not limited to, race, class, sexual orientation, and disability. Therefore discussions that treat women as a monolithic group do not fall within our mandate. Because conditions of inequality are continually changing, our mandate is continually evolving."

11. "Columbia Journal of Gender and Law was founded to publish legal and interdisciplinary writings on feminism and gender issues and to expand feminist jurisprudence. Both national and international in focus, JGL is intended to serve as a forum for topics inadequately addressed in most law journals and reviews, including issues concerning women, children, family, sexuality, reproductive rights, and violence. The articles in JGL approach legal issues from a variety of disciplines. We aim to promote an expansive view of feminism embracing women and men of all colors, classes, sexual orientations, and cultures."

Seeking connections among academic, creative, and political approaches to gender, Critical Matrix brings together written and visual materials that explore, redefine, or reach across traditional disciplinary boundaries. Edited by graduate students, guided by an advisory board of nationally recognized scholars, and published twice yearly by the Program in Women's Studies at Princeton University, Critical Matrix solicits new work by authors from multiple disciplines, at any stage in their careers, with or without academic affiliation."

The editors are committed to providing a forum for feminist analysis, debate, and exchange. The feminist movement has demonstrated that the study of women is more than a compensatory project. Instead, feminism has the potential fundamentally to reshape the way we view the world. We wish not just to interpret women's experiences but to change women's condition. For us, feminist thought represents a transformation of consciousness, social forms, and modes of action."

"Femspec, a peer-reviewed journal, is interested in developing a community of like-minded people engaged in speculating, theorizing, creating and questioning gender across the boundaries, including issues of sexual orientation. We emphasize interdisciplinary approaches, and encourage work on teaching as well as literary and cultural criticism and creative material. We hope an approach to pedagogy will bring in work from a wider area of disciplines. We are interested in a variety of feminisms and aim to be inclusive of ethnic and cultural diversity in an internationalist perspective. We are also committed to publishing feminist experimental prose and poetic works, and to experimenting across media. Our impetus came from the collectively-perceived lack of attention to non-linear writing, sf, fantasy, magical realism and supernatural works in feminist journals and audiences; the lack of consistently evolving developed levels of feminism in sf criticism; and the inadequacy of magical realism publishing outlets in the U.S."

11. "Persimmon Tree showcases an impressive variety of literature and art by women over 60, many still working well into their 80s and 90s. Many of the writers and artists are well-known: Marilyn French, Ruth Stone, Grace Paley, E. M. Broner, Paula Gunn Allen, Jane Lazarre, Faith Ringgold, and Nicole Hollander. Others are lesser known, while some are newly developing their craft in their later years. All of them are at the height of their creative powers, and all of them express the shared, though diverse experiences of aging women, from late middle age to late old age. Persimmon Tree is intended to fill a niche that has been neglected by contemporary publishing, whether in print or online. There is a growing body of work by male writers and artists who are entering or well into old age. But the comparable body of work by aging women in much smaller and mostly limited to a few already well-known writers and artists. Women are creating, but they are not getting the exposure they deserve."

The aim of Reproductive Health Matters is "to promote laws, policies, research and services that meet women's reproductive health needs and support women's right to decide whether, when and how to have children.... [its] women-centered perspective...allows us to identify and understand women's reproductive health needs, and therefore evaluate and improve on existing policy and practice to women's benefit.... To this end, the journal explores what is meant by women's needs and how these can best be met. It addresses fundamental values, concerns and dilemmas, acknowledging the multi-faceted nature of problems and solutions. Finally, it reflects on commonalities and differences in goals and points of view among those involved in the field – in order to foster increased communication and cooperation, new thinking and action, and new forms of consensus."

11. "Studies in Gender and Sexuality is a response to the excitement attendant to recent research and writing by scholars and clinicians. It provides a forum for examining gender and sexuality that is both multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary. As clinicians and scholars who have written and practiced at the intersection of feminist theory and clinical psychoanalysis, the editors are especially interested in those areas of controversy that invite the divergent perspectives and insights of different disciplines. Early issues of SGS focus on transgender identities and intersexuality; contemporary readings of the category of perversion; puberty and adolescence revised and revisited; and the intersections among class, race, and gender in theory, culture, and the clinical situation. The primary goal of SGS is to promote dialogue on these and other timely topics among clinicians, researchers, and theorists. Consonant with this goal, the journal also publishes related work from the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences, where questions involving gender and sexuality are currently in lively debate."

"13th Moon is the oldest continuously published feminist literary magazine of those founded in the 1970's revival of feminism. Its field of scholarship is literature and graphic art by contemporary women...." 13th Moon provides a forum for material often neglected by the larger culture which does not bear women's concerns in mind, and by translators of foreign language literatures who overlook the work of contemporary women writers. It is committed to publishing the work of minority women, lesbians, and women of color, and has published "...a large selection of writers who are either 'new formalists' or experimentalists..."

"Trivia: Voices of Feminism is a public forum for the creative and the critical thinking of that great diversity of women who insist on our primacy, and who in league with and in the name of all the other endangered species on the this planet, refuse to accept the life-destroying status quo. We publish feminist writing in the form of literary essays, experimental prose, poetry, translations, and reviews. We encourage women writers to take risks with language and forms so as to give their ideas the most original and vital expression possible. Our larger purpose is to foster a body of rigorous, creative and independent feminist thought."

- A Call to Action: Five Policy Proposals on Behalf of All Families—President's Address to the 2007 Groves Conference on Marriage and Family 1
Leslie A. Koepke

This "Call to Action: Five Policy Proposals on Behalf of All Families" was the presidential address presented at Groves Conference on Marriage and Family on June 3, 2007. The theme of the Groves Conference was "Standing Up and Speaking Out for All Families" and the goal of the address was to call attention to issues affecting all families and advocate for policies supportive of family well-being. The issues included: supporting gay, post-modern families; establishment of a living wage/family economy for working families; development of family-friendly policies reflecting the reality and structure of diverse families; learning about and from European countries' family-friendly policies; and recognition of the unique needs of immigrant families, particularly children of immigrant parents.

KEYWORDS. Family policy, social justice, work and family, gay families, post-modern families, diversity

- The Heart of Sexual Trauma: Patriarchy
as a Centrally Organizing Principle for Couple Therapy 13
Timothy R. Baima
Elizabeth B. Feldhausen

Sexual trauma has a devastating wake that impacts survivors and their intimate relationships. Current couple therapy models address the effects of sexual trauma on individuals and relationships. Many of these models acknowledge the importance of addressing gender inequalities. So far, no model of couple therapy makes patriarchy central to the conceptualization of sexual trauma and treatment. This paper asserts that sexual trauma is one of the most horrific manifestations of patriarchy and therefore is most effectively treated when an understanding of patriarchy is made central to conceptualization and treatment. We propose that inviting couples into conversations about ways in which patriarchy organizes their relationship is liberating for both partners and creates space for more preferred ways of being intimate.

KEYWORDS. Sexual trauma, patriarchy, couple therapy

- Using an IFS Informed Intervention to Treat
African American Families Surviving Sexual Abuse:
One Family's Story 37
Erica J. Wilkins

The author provides a case study of Internal Family Systems model when providing therapy for an African American single mother who is working to heal with a female child who has been sexually abused. The author presents a format to challenge issues of power, privilege and oppression through the incorporation of Internal Family Systems therapy (IFS). She explores both the historical context and cultural implications for African American families who are surviving sexual abuse. This study provides implications for future research concerning the use of IFS to challenge issues related to oppression.

- Understanding Poverty from the Perspective of Social Justice Activism:
Reflections on "Think Globally-Act Locally"—
A Conversation with Leslie Rebecca Bloom 67
Wan-Juo Cheng

In the field of marriage and family therapy, efforts have been made to recognize social justice associated with race, gender, and sexuality over the past decade. However, scant attention is given to the social justice issue in welfare policy that significantly affects daily activities of low-income families. Without awareness of the internationality with poverty and welfare, marriage and family therapists working with low-income families may reinforce the unjust status quo. This paper based on an interview with Leslie Rebecca Bloom aims to address the importance of understanding effects of social policy on families, and further to provide implications for therapists to promote social justice working with the impoverished or working poor.

- Republican Motherhood Redux?: Women as Contingent
Citizens in 21st Century America
Melody Rose

1

This article examines the re-emergence of republican motherhood, once used to define the unique and conditional relationship between women and the state in the nineteenth century. By examining recent developments in federal and state abortion policy, I reveal the current trend toward "devolving" women's social and political citizenship rights to the states, where they will once again be highly variable and often contingent upon women's mothering status. Alternatively, these same policy developments demonstrate the simultaneous nationalization of fetal rights and a language of fetal citizenship or patriotic nativism. While women's citizenship becomes contingent upon the caprices of local power structures, fetal citizenship emerges as a uniform, national concept.

KEYWORDS. Abortion, republican motherhood, devolution, patriotic nativism, citizenship, fetal rights

- Masculinity as Political Strategy: George W. Bush,
the "War on Terrorism," and an Echoing Press

31

Kevin Coe

Meredith M. Bugley
Sheryl Cunningham
Nancy Van Leuven

Scholars have demonstrated the centrality of masculinity as an ideology in the American presidency, but have devoted insufficient attention to the manner in which political leaders can emphasize masculine themes to gain strategic advantage, and how media organizations can be encouraged to adopt such themes in news coverage. With this in mind, in this research we analyze (1) President George W. Bush's public communications prior to and immediately following the attacks of September 11, 2001, and (2) NBC network television news coverage and New York Times and Washington Post editorials during the latter dates to elucidate the nature of masculinity as a political strategy. Findings indicate that in the aftermath of September 11 Bush enacted a highly masculine ideology through his treatment of the press and emphasis upon two masculine themes—strength and dominance—and that this approach facilitated wide circulation of his masculine discourse in the press.

KEYWORDS. Masculinity, President George W. Bush, discourse, media, September 11, war on terrorism

- Male and Female Sources in Newspaper Coverage of Male and Female Candidates
in US Senate Races in 2004

57

Eric Freedman
Frederick Fico
Brad Love

This study assesses how the largest daily newspapers in states with female US Senate candidates in 2004 used non-partisan male and female expert and non-expert sources in covering campaigns. Using content analysis, it found that male, non-partisan sources appeared more frequently and prominently than did female sources. That difference was more than four times greater for expert sources who provided "horse race" or "issue" commentary than for non-expert sources. It also found that reporters of both genders cited female sources equally rarely. There was a negative correlation between gender diversity in story sourcing and newsroom racial diversity. The relative scarcity of female sources may have a significant effect on potential readership and the campaign-related news they receive.

KEYWORDS. Election coverage, news sources, female Senate candidates, reporter gender, source gender, newsroom diversity

- The Paradox of Protestantism and Women in Elected
Office in the United States

77

Jennifer Merolla
Jean Reith Schroedel
Mirya Rose Holman

In cross-national studies, scholars have found that wealthy countries and those with a Protestant tradition are more likely to have higher levels of women in elected office. Even though the United States should then be high in this domain, it lags behind many similarly situated countries. We posit that one reason for this paradox is that Protestantism in the United States is far more socially conservative than is typical in other Protestant countries. To test our argument, we use state-level data on the proportion of women in elected office from 2002 to 2004 and survey data on church membership. We find a negative relationship between the percentage of Protestants belonging to churches associated with the National Association of Evangelicals, a lobbying group representing socially conservative Protestant denominations, and the proportion of women in elected office.

- African American Women and Power Politics
in New York City, 1944–1972

101

Julie Gallagher

Between 1944 and 1972, African American women from New York City ran for all levels of elected office, from City Council to the United States Presidency. In this article, I argue that World War II created unprecedented opportunities for women to enter politics. A study of postwar New York offers an excellent opportunity to examine how black women defied conventions of gender and race, challenging the pervasive image of the urban political operative, to advance in the city's tough electoral arena. They succeeded in overcoming the Democratic Party machine, Tammany Hall's, resistance to running black women. Once inside the system, despite significant obstacles, these women pushed to change the Democratic Party in important ways for women and for African Americans.

KEYWORDS. African American women, female candidates, New York City politics, elections, Democratic Party, party politics

34 Good Ole Boys

BY KATHERINE SPILLAR

That's who's behind Ward Connerly's "civil rights" initiatives. If they win on state ballots this fall, women lose.

Contracting Connerly

BY MARY MOORE
AND JENNIFER HAHN

Attacks on affirmative action have had a devastating effect on women and minority contractors—while lining the pockets of the good old boys and their unlikely champion.

A Preference for Deception

BY KIMBERLE CRENSHAW

A legal scholar shows how the language of civil rights is stolen by those trying to halt affirmative action.

42 Are U.S. Policies Killing Women?

BY MICHELE KORT

In a word, yes. And what's the U.S. president doing about it? Making it worse.

Dying in the Backstreets

BY MARY KATHOMI RIUNGU

Too often, Kenyan women victimized by unsafe abortions end up in a last-chance Nairobi hospital—if they're lucky. Blame U.S. policies, not just local law and culture.

NIKK magasin 2 - 2007

NORWAY LEADS THE WAY

The Norwegian Government is preparing the world's first parliamentary proposition on men and gender equality. The aim is to include all areas where the male role is of significance to gender equality. PAGE 4

"PROSTITUTION - A POINT OF DISAGREEMENT IN THE NORDIC COUNTRIES"

It is illegal in Sweden to buy sexual services, and the Norwegian Government now proposes to introduce a similar law. However, there is insufficient knowledge about the extent of prostitution and about what legislation and which measures are most effective. NIKK is therefore carrying out a project on prostitution, the aim of which is to provide the Nordic governments with a better basis of information. PAGE 12

YOUNG MUSLIMS CRITICAL OF PATRIARCHAL INTERPRETATIONS OF ISLAM

Young practicing Muslims in Norway do not challenge the "natural" and "God-given" divided gender system, which emphasizes the physical, psychological and emotional differences between men and women and their complementary "natures". However, like Muslim feminists, many of them are critical of the patriarchal interpretations of Islam and instead highlight the egalitarian teachings of the Koran. PAGE 20

Gender equality - a male issue now
"How often do you hear men around a table talking about gender equality?" asks masculinity researcher Jørgen Lorentzen, member of the Norwegian Men's Panel. PAGE 6

Increased parental choice
Next year the Swedish Government will carry out two family policy reforms which some researchers regard as contradictory. PAGE 8

When does legal prostitution become illegal trafficking?
Report from a seminar arranged by NIKK PAGE 14

Listen to women's own interpretations of their religion
"There is a kind of feminist blindness concerning the significance of religion for women, particularly its positive and liberating aspects", says the Finnish researcher Elina Vuola in an interview. PAGE 16

Women's conversions to Islam
When converts talk about their Muslim engagement, they particularly underline that Islam stands for equality between people in general and between the sexes in particular. At the same time, they assert that the wife must obey her husband. PAGE 24

Male violence in the Bible
The Bible contains countless narratives of child sacrifice, rape or incest, which in turn have inspired reinterpretations from artists, composers and writers. What strategies have the interpreters used and how can the history of these interpretations contribute to the understanding of gendered violence in our time? PAGE 29

Female participants make international military operations more successful
From the beginning of 2008, Nordic special forces can be sent to international crisis locations by the EU. Researchers at the Swedish National Defence College work on integrating a gender perspective in the Nordic Battlegroup. PAGE 32

Social Workers' Perspectives on the Victim Impact Statements in Cases of Sexual Assault in Canada

Janice Du Mont
Karen-Lee Miller
Deborah White

The victim impact statement (VIS) is a written account of the physical, psychological, and economic harms experienced by a victim as a result of crime. This paper describes a qualitative study conducted in Ontario, Canada with 15 hospital-based sexual assault care and treatment centre social workers (SWs) who had supported victims through the process of producing a VIS for criminal court. It was found that while SWs' formal knowledge of VIS legislation and legal practice was often poor, they were mindful of its implementation in the courts and concerned with assisting women in avoiding inciting ire in judges through the use of inappropriate or inadmissible VIS commentary. The practice of many SWs was guided by a firm belief in the intrinsic expressive function of the VIS, which contrasted with most victims' motivation to complete a VIS due to its perceived instrumental value. The authors conclude with recommendations for future research.

The Domestic Violence Experiences of Women in Community Corrections

Rachel Bridges Whaley
Angela M. Moe
J. Mark Eddy
Jean Daugherty

A variety of studies indicate high rates of domestic violence in the backgrounds of women offenders. We examine and extend this work through a qualitative study of women on probation or parole in a western U.S. county. In-depth interviews were conducted with 14 women who participated in a larger study in which only questionnaire data were collected. Participants completed a brief telephone interview about prior experiences of partner violence and then a face-to-face extensive in-person interview. In the analyses, several notable themes emerged regarding the women's histories of child victimization, partner abuse, substance abuse, coercion into crime, and a lack of support services. Partner violence may play an important role in the genesis and maintenance of the criminality of a significant proportion of women, and should be acknowledged and addressed as part of programs intended to decrease recidivism.

An Intermediate Sanction That Fosters the Mother-Child Bond: A Process Evaluation of Summit House

Pauline K. Brennan

Summit House is a residential alternative-to-incarceration program in North Carolina that operates in a home-like setting for female offenders and their children; the Program is designated an intermediate sanction. The Program has been recognized by experts in the field as a national model. And, in 1996 and 1998 respectively, it received two national awards—The President's Service Award and The Improvement of Justice Award. Despite national recognition and honor, however, little is known about the process by which the Program assists women in their role as mothers. This paper provides a process evaluation of the Summit House Program. To assess the Program, I reviewed an array of documents (e.g., resident manuals, incident reports, individualized treatment plans) and conducted a total of 44 interviews with administrators, staff, and clients. These individual face-to-face interviews took place in a private setting and averaged an hour in duration. Based on this information, I explain how the Program assists residents in building competency in the relationships they have with their children. The Program's strengths and weaknesses are highlighted and recommendations are offered for improvement.

Sexual Assault Training of Law Enforcement Officers: Results of a Statewide Survey

Linda M. Kinney
Eric J. Bruns
Patrick Bradley
Joyce Dantzer
Mark D. Weist

The importance of proper response to victims of sexual abuse or assault has been well documented. However, despite their prominence as responders, little research has been conducted on training law enforcement officials to conduct this aspect of their jobs effectively. We describe results of a statewide survey of the adequacy of law enforcement officers' preparation to respond to victims of sexual assault. Results revealed a significant need for greater training on the topic, as well as a number of potential positive impacts of additional training and education, including feelings of better preparation, greater collaboration with external resources, more likelihood of victim participation in investigation, and more cases being brought to prosecution. Based on the results, we present a model of proposed benefits of additional training for police officers in sexual assault.

O T C

Oftentimes, with the goal of attaining a better life, Asian women engage in marriage migration within Asia. However many of these women experience social discrimination, as well as diverse forms of structural and direct violence based on their gender, race and class.
