

counted over 160 members of the bar who were participating in teaching this year: 30 as lecturers, 44 working in the General Practice Course, 45 helping out in Trial Advocacy, 32 in the Clinical Program, and 7 in the two new law office training courses—advanced legal drafting and the client counselling competition. Most of these attorneys were teaching practice skills—giving students the benefit of their experience at the bar—providing a kind of training which practicing lawyers can do far better than most regular faculty.

It looks as if we will have about one tenth the money next year which we had this year for such purposes unless the Legislature increases the budget substantially. So our practice skills training courses will have to be curtailed. But I wanted you to know how much assistance we had received from the bar this year, and especially to say thank you to those in the audience who have helped out.

Finally, you will be interested to know that we have five splendid young faculty members joining us in the fall. They come from a variety of backgrounds—teaching, practice, clerkships. It is reassuring to know that we continue to attract young teachers of distinction in Wisconsin.

THE GARGOYLE CORRECTS ITS MISTAKES

JUDGES

In one way, it is discouraging to be caught in error, particularly when great efforts have been made to avoid it. In another, it is encouraging to the Gargoyle to discover how many of its readers are careful and discerning.

Anyway, we are pleased to make additions to the lists of alumni judges and alumni professors published in our last issue (Volume 4, No. 3).

For instance:

1928—Circuit Judge
W. M. Jackman,
Madison.

1948—County Judge
William G. Callow,
Waukesha.

1950—Circuit Judge
William L. Walker,
St. Petersburg, Florida.

Also, Judge Howard H. Schmidt, Los Angeles (Class of 1939), was listed as a California Supreme Court Justice, when he is in fact a Superior Court Judge, Los Angeles County.

PROFESSORS

1957—Arnon Allen, Extension Law Department, University of Wisconsin—Madison.

1967—Richard von Briesen, Queens University, Kingston, Ontario.

1969—Myron Erickson, University of Missouri—Columbia, School of Business.

1971—Volker Knoppke-Wetzel, Extension Law Department, University of Wisconsin—Madison.
