

Prof. Thain

On October 9, Professor Gerald Thain participated in a program on Consumer Credit and Consumer Transactions at the University of Texas, Austin, part of the Continuing Legal Education Program offered to members of the Texas Bar. Professor Thain's address was on "Legal Restrictions on the Advertising of Credit-Truth-in-Lending and Related Matters." Before coming to Wisconsin in 1974, Mr. Thain served four years as Assistant Director, Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission.

Teacher Collective Negotiations is the subject of a paper prepared by Emeritus Professor Nathan P. Feinsinger and Eleanore J. Roe, Assistant Professor in the U.W. Law Extension for a book entitled A Candid Discussion of the Issues in Education, commissioned by the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction. Of all the troublesome problems faced by public education (and discussed in the book), the questions raised by the necessity of negotiating with and for professional staff are, by common agreement, the most difficult.

The Foundation maintains a small full-time staff of lawyers and other supporting personnel, such as data processing specialists, statisticians and social scientists.

Election to Fellowship is a coveted honor. Those chosen are distinguished lawyers, devoted to community welfare, who have demonstrated dedication to the objectives of the American Bar Association. Membership is limited to one quarter of one percent of the lawyer population in each of the 52 jurisdictions of the ABA. Fellows are chosen by the Foundation's Board of Directors, after nominations from the Fellows in the state in which the vacancy occurs. A number of Fellows-at-large are also chosen by the Board.

In 1974, Professor Willard Hurst was named Honorary Fellow for his research in the history of law.

The Fellows was established in 1955, and there are presently 1600 members. The Law School's former Dean, Spencer L. Kimball, is Executive Director of the American Bar Foundation.

The Foundation's objective is the "improvement of the legal system through research" and "the dissemination of the knowledge gained from research into the law, the administration of justice and the legal profession."

HOME COMING—1975

HELSTAD—Concluded

during the last year created one large seminar room, one small seminar room and a meeting room, which will hold up to 10 persons for a meeting or a seminar of similar size.

We are creating more office space for our faculty and visiting lecturers by causing certain groups to be moved to quarters outside the Law Building. For example, office space for supervising attorneys and students in some of our clinical programs is being provided in University-owned buildings over on University Avenue—a short block from the Law Building. Similarly, the University is in the process of finding space outside the Law Building for the Extension Law Department which we have housed for a number of years. Again, we hope that space may be found within close proximity to the Law Building. These moves will free up substantial office space as well as the possibility of an additional seminar room.

In addition, the last session of the Wisconsin Legislature approved a sum of $670,000 for the construction of an addition to the Law Library. This will provide a number of studies or small offices as well as substantial additional stack space for books. Construction should be starting next summer. There is also in the early planning stages an office and classroom addition to the Law Building, but it probably is too early to predict whether this addition ever will materialize.

In conclusion, I think we are making substantial progress, and I am confident we will meet the conditions imposed by the Council of the ABA Section on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar. We ought not be concerned only with meeting those conditions, however. A recently-compiled index of resources of the roughly 160 ABA-approved law schools in the country (weighted as to number of students and number of faculty) shows Wisconsin tied for 35th place with 5 other law schools. I would like to think that we belong among the top dozen law schools in general quality. We ought not rest on our laurels until our resources match our aspirations.
