

My Biological Ecosystem

Rachelle Ann Dupre

I learn so I can say what it is.

I find the answers from those who tore apart the questions,
I hold onto the rope, because without you I cannot survive, but my mind can.

I can survive this biological ecosystem and drift off into the force that created it.

I can step out of the box, and even then I am not alone.

My spirit doesn't belong to me; it's a tool of who created the Earth.

The force moves through the ecosystem. It's consumed or rejected, I take it in, swallow it before it lets out. It's not that it wants to escape me, but it gave us the power to choose. I choose to hold onto it for it's all I love. I will let go of my biological ecosystem until it can learn to love me. Knowledge is power, so I will find the path and walk away. I will walk into the light of a never understanding force until I am healed. I will escape my biological ecosystem.